

12th Joint International Symposium on Food Science and Technology

1-2 December 2019, NUS Faculty of Science

Founded in 2008 by NUS and Tokyo University of Marine Science and Technology (TUMSAT), this Joint International Symposium series has since expanded and attracted researchers from other partner universities including Hokkaido University (Japan), Kasetsart University (Thailand), as well as a few universities from China.

This year the Joint International Symposium returns to Singapore as one of the key events to commemorate the 20th Anniversary of the NUS Food Science and Technology Programme. NUS recently announced the establishment of the Department of Food Science and Technology (FST) in its Faculty of Science, which is the first FST Department in Singapore's university sector.

Attendees include university faculty members, research staff, postgraduate students, government agencies and industry partners. Poster and oral competition awards shall be open to all participating postgraduate students.
